| Market | Market conditions post-Christmas are as one might anticipate, a bit flat and variable. Retail in general is back on previous years, and this is the situation with fruit as well. | | | | |
| conditions | On the bright side fruit that is coming into wholesale warehouses is moving out again, so there are no backlogs. | | | | |
| Novth | After a fantastic hot and dry run of weather the switch seems to have turned with cooler temperatures last week and about 40mm of rain across the stonefruit growing areas. There was a windy day which blew a limited amount of fruit to the ground and broken a few branches. | | | | |
| North Island growing conditions | The coming week will be similar with 50-80 mm of rain predicted for the week and temperatures in the teens to low twenties. Potential evapotranspiration (PET) will be mostly 2-4 mm/day which is significantly lower than the 6 and 7 mm/day that was the norm a couple of weeks ago. | | | | |
| conditions | The long-term forecasters had suggested a shift to more La Nina type conditions at years end. We wait to see if this will eventuate. Even with the cooler weather, the harvest is still 10-14 days ahead of normal. | | | | |
| South Island | days along with hits and pieces of rain adding up to 20 mm for the week | | typical 28°C to 3 | 32°C | |
| growing conditions | The coming week will be cooler, with 13°C to 25°C maximums and some rain. More rain is predicted in the southern valleys than in the north, but only 10-15mm across the week. This is not ideal cherry weather. The stop start nature of harvesting may well continue. | | | | |

| Quality large fruit is holding a price premium. The market is a bit all over the place with plenty of supply and soft fruit being offered sale. Others say that the market is tidy, that supply is not quiet there. Growers will not start harvesting again until after the statutory holiday break. Generally, Santina® and Sonnet® are finished. Some have started Stella and Lapins, but many will hold off until next year. Rainier and Starletta® continue to be picked and are selling well where the fruit is large and clean. | | | | | |
